Nepal's Political Outlook

ISBN: 8183631193

Book Title: Conflict to Peace : Transition in Nepal

Author: Umesh K. Bhattarai

Hardback Edition: 2014 [2014 AD]

Script/Language: English

Synopsis: this book highlights all the gamut of Conflict in Nepal

Additional Info: Adarsh Books, India

Sales-Price (excluding shipping): US$ 31.85

Conflict to Peace presents a sharp and thorough analysis of the long-term historical factors, and the social, economic and cultural conditions, that prepared the ground for Nepal's decade long civil conflict. The work is much more than a chronicling of political dramas. It looks beneath the surface at the social frustrations which fueled social and political upheaval - factors which remain critically important in the struggle to form a more just society for all Nepalis. This work benefits from the rather unique background of its author, who came to the scholarly field of Conflict & Peace Studies after a notable career in the Nepal Army.

Book Title: Strategic Himalayas : Republican Nepal and External Powers

Author: Nihar R Nayak

Hardback Edition: 2014 [2014 AD]

Script/Language: English

Synopsis: the book examines the nature of external powers role during the political transition in Nepal since 2006

Additional Info: Institute of Defense Studies & Analyses, India

Sales-Price (excluding shipping): US$ 31.85

"Strategic Himalayas" by Nihar R. Nayak is one of the pioneering efforts to explore "New Nepal's" external engagements. It is a courageous effort as the contours of the "New Nepal" are still a work in progress as the Constitution is yet to be drafted and adopted. The pangs suffered by Nepal's new polity in coping with the pressures of the external stake holders have been carefully brought out of the study. Its main thrust is on India and China which happens to be Nepal's most powerful neighbors

Ethnographic Research Series

About the Series

The Ethnographic Research Series represents one part of a larger research project undertaken by the Central Department of Sociology and Anthropology at Tribhuvan University from 2011 to 2013 to design a Social Inclusion Atlas and Ethnographic Profiles (SIA-EP) for Nepal. The SIA-EP project has four interrelated components, including a country wide Nepal Social Inclusion Survey (NSIS), a Nepal Multidimensional Social Inclusion Index (NSII) combining original surveying with the findings of other recent surveys and the 2011 Census, a Social Inclusion Atlas that maps caste/ethnicity data, and finally a series of Ethnographic Profiles describing the 42 highly-excluded communities of Nepal. The overall objective of the SIA-EP research was to promote a more informed understanding of Nepal's social diversity by producing research based on the most current information of the country's cultural and linguistic diversity and the status of social inclusion of different social groups. The combination of quantitative and qualitative information produced through this research is expected to contribute to policy design, research and education.

About the Author

Peter Prindle served in the first United States Peace Corps group to work in Nepal from 1962 to 1964. He then entered graduate school and received his M.A. in 1968 and his Ph.D. in 1974. Both degrees were in cultural anthropology and Dr. Prindle subsequently taught and carried out research on peasant societies in Iran, Japan and Nepal. However his primary fieldwork, including that for his dissertation, has been in Nepal where he periodically conducted fieldwork from 1971 to 2012.
